PRIMARY ELECTION IS CLEAN CUT FIGHT AMONG REPUBLICANS

WISCONSIN REPUBLICANS HAVE FIGHT ALL TO THEMSELVES IN PRIMARIES.

WILCOX HAS BIG JOB

Wilcox Has Big Task to Beat Philipp-Scheldt-Timmerman Combination—Republican Prospect Not Rosy.

By Ellis E. Usher.

Milwaukee, Aug. 31.—The best medicine that is making for loyal candidates for state office and for congress this fall is the splendid victories of the allies in France, about which our own fine boys are writing thousands and hundreds of thousands of letters home. Such letters help shorten the line of votes for the kind of statesman Wisconsin blushes for, and they will do more and more as we approach November.

Some returns have come in early. Vardaman "got his" in Mississippi, and the Republicans of Michigan sawed Henry Ford out of the Democratic camp, and by November Michigan will show that a pacifist freak cannot represent the people. It may take time, but like prohibition, Berger's process, and the defeat of the Kaiser, the final day of the yellow office seeker is on the way. He will be done for and damned in due course. And he insists, like the brewers, in coining a thorough job.

Wisconsin Republicans have the fight all to themselves, but there is not much that looks like bloodshed. Philipp and Wilcox have been on the soft gloves for a few minutes but after a left-handed blow or two in the air both crawled under the rope and disappeared. They had a "bridge" all right, but no staying qualities. It's "no fair" anyway to call a boxing match within a mile track a prize fight.

Grant Sprit.

"Hell, Heaven or Hoboken by Christmas!" is the latest from the Yankee trenches in France. That is the spirit in which our Wisconsin boys are fighting for their natives and friends. It is noticeable that a large proportion of our Wisconsin casualties lists are German names. It is also noticeable that these boys of our own industry are using no soft words in denouncing Germany. Germans and military autocracy. They are American to the core. My former son, who is training for the navy, in a letter I had this week tells of the death of two and the wounding of another of his former schoolmates, all boys of German blood, but who are now fighting for the United States. He says over it but expresses his desire to "get across" as quickly as possible. He tells how one of these boys, a schoolmate and playmate in Jefferson, was found dead at the foot of a shell hole, with four dead Germans near him, indicating that he had sold his life dearly.

Soldiers' Opinions.
It is not to be thought for an instant that men of this kind of courage and daring are going to listen with any patience to any politician, or to any man who appears to have prejudice on the sinister side. They understand and they despise accordingly, and there will be a good many of them back here before long who will have to be convinced that the more of them that get here before election the fewer votes our "war governor" will get. I know one Republican who is now in a hospital in France with an arm broken by a bullet. James Tracy Hale, Jr., who voted for Hughes and Philipp, but who has no use for the "war" governor. He is not alone. I mention him because I have it from him directly.

Election "Dope."
The general feeling as to next Tuesday's primary, as nearly as I can size it up, is sort of contemptuous resignation as to the general success of the present congressmen and state officers, largely because they have, or appear to have under the primary system the game in their own hands, and wherever it is necessary to do so they have multiplied candidates and utilized factions to secure a plurality, when a majority vote would be impossible. There is a widely prevalent feeling that the contest between Philipp, Timmerman and Seidel is a good deal of a sham fight, and that their trains will all lead in to the same general terminal on Tuesday. In plain English many people think that both Timmerman and Seidel are largely in it just to draw votes that Philipp can't get, though he is apparently trying for them. But he knows that they will not be for him. He hopes through the side-shows to beat him to a plurality on the remainder. All the information that looks worth anything indicates that the German vote in the senatorial election will give a large vote for Timmerman, through La Follette's influence, and Seidel will get some fraction of pro-German irreconcilables. If Mr. Wilcox beats the combination it will be a wonder, with ten congressional machines co-operating in this great war campaign. Fortunately it is a clean cut Republican fight, among Republicans, with no chance to lay it on the Democrats, who have nothing but I. O. U. on the table. Their ships all went to the Socialist "kitty" last spring.

Republican Middle.
It is a sorry Republican prospect. There are, of course, some patriotic Republican workers, but they are few and far between. Wilcox gets one off at a time, which is better than any other candidate, but he doesn't tell Republicans the inferior and the sad aspect in Wisconsin, however, is only a reflection of the condition of the national Republican party. It seems to be traveling at a more rapid pace, the same road to oblivion that the Democrats traveled in civil war days. The Democrats followed their worst leaders away from the New York Vandelland and others, just as the Republicans are now following Penrose, Norris, La Follette, Nelson, Philipp and the likes of them. No one but the few who are back to history will find that Carpenter, Logan, John M. Palmer and hundreds of such men were actually driven into the Republican party by the "war" issue.

A partisan needs to be a politician. The true patriot will not be caught in a dead eddy of small party politics in a time like this.

Personal and Personal.
Wauwatosa stood up and called along last Monday to United States District Attorney "Art" Sawyer to get Duster and prosecute Victor Berger. Victor is on the to-boggon all right, but there's a dense fog of silence these days in the neighborhood of one Leo Stern. The German-American press state that elected Senator Leo Stern, who was long state president, has been destroyed by congress, but Leo is still assistant superintendent of our public schools here in Milwaukee. The German-American press state that elected Senator Leo Stern, who was long state president, has been destroyed by congress, but Leo is still assistant superintendent of our public schools here in Milwaukee.

There are people who would like to hear from Leo. They miss his frequency in the press. John C. Chapple, manager of the Wilcox campaign, tells me that "There's nothing to it. The senator will be nominated and elected." I don't know much about it but it looks as if Wilcox's vote would include about all the Wisconsin people who are patriotic enough to forget Philipp as he has always forgotten them. The question is how many of them don't inspire me with great faith.

I see Germania street in Eau Claire is only two blocks long and has a service flag with twenty-three stars on it. Now change the name of the street and it will be completely "United States."

Wisconsin has some distance yet to go to equal her civil war record. Then go to equal her civil war record. Then go to equal her civil war record. Then go to equal her civil war record.

The first district congressional campaign has concentrated on the field of Deane and grandson and the name of Gov. Scofield, has been commissioned a lieutenant in the U. S. aviation service. "Chip" of the old aviation service.

Evan and La Follette don't even get into the "Personal" column of the society page lately.

Jackson street needs a new bridge.

LIVE SERIAL STORY SOON IN GAZETTE

Like a ray of sun breaking through the clouds is the war one well known critic describes the GAZETTE's new serial story, "Carolyn of the Corners." The new story is by Ruth Belmore and is a story of every day life, which will interest both young and old alike. It is a clean cut tale of things that are happening every day and is full of smiles, not a few thrills and an occasional tear. It is a story that will be long remembered by our readers with pleasure long after the installment has been printed. Announcement will soon be made as to when the first installment will appear.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR FRIDAY'S CELEBRATION

The LaFayette-Marne Day Committee met last night at the Chamber of Commerce and perfected their plans for celebration of the combined day on Friday evening, September 6th.

The celebration will be held in the rear of the Court House Park, and promises, according to the committee, to be a splendid affair. On the part of the citizens of Janesville, to do honor to the famous French-American, and to commemorate the battle of the Marne which was perhaps the turning point in the war to make the world safe for democracy.

Big Jitney Dance at Armory Labor Day afternoon. Everybody invited.

FRIDAY'S MARKETS
Hogs sold at $20.25 on a wild market, making a new record. The advance cannot be attributed to semi-famine conditions, as eleven primary markets have received 284,000 this week against 206,000 last week and 228,000 a year ago. The real reason is demand for the product, the government being the principal buyer.

As a result of the 50¢/75¢ advance in packing and choice hogs are selling cleaner weather weight being no longer a serious handicap provided it carries decent quality.

With a shortage of beef and little fat mutton, hogs ought to hold prices steady until the new crop begins moving, by which time stocks will have disappeared and necessity for an accumulation will exist.

Friday's market was 15¢/20¢ higher on hogs steady on cattle and firm on sheep. Country buyers were in evidence and a clean sweep was made. While there will be considerable stuff from far-away points will be yarded and Tuesday will afford buyers easier picking.

Another free movement of Western cattle is in sight for next week. Veals are at a record at $18.50. Dairy stock has been closely marketed and the public appears to be hungry for veal, the strength of this market being accentuated by death of ket being severely punished by drought.

Cattle Run Insufficient
Packers had 1,500 of a run of 5,000 cattle to meet their plans, the rest being insufficient to make a market. The best steers available sold at $13.30, with the bulk at $12¢/13¢.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

"When he has more than he can eat,
To feed a stranger's not a feat.

"When he has more than he can spend,
It isn't hard to give or lend.

"Who gives but what he'll never miss,
Will never know what giving is.

"He'll win few praises from his Lord,
Who does but what he can afford.

"The widow's mite to heaven went,
Because real sacrifice is meant."

This little poem on sacrifice, from the pen of Edgar A. Guest, is worth thinking about, just now, when the spirit of sacrifice is in the air, and when so many of us are posing as martyrs. There was a time, not so long ago, when we couldn't have meat at every meal, and now we exist on war bread and complain about the scarcity of sugar, wondering how we can be expected to maintain a sweet disposition on a two pound allowance, or whether there will be anything left of us next spring, with the coal supply shut off.

The experience through which we are passing, is a new and strange experience. The land of plenty, which we have so long enjoyed, and whose resources were never greater than they are today, has become a land of restrictions, where the necessities of life are distributed on a famine basis, and complaints are not uncommon.

For the first time in the history of our nation we have become the world's pantry and the world's banker, and we are discovering, for the first time, that we are not living by ourselves or for ourselves. It requires a large expansion of the heart to grasp this great truth, and some of us have hearts that are slow to expand. The dollar looks so mighty big to some of us that we prefer to chase the dollar.

The era through which we are passing has no precedent for a guide. The veteran in business may have survived numerous panics, he may often have been a victim of hard times, but he is all at sea today, because the rules which have always governed in business are set aside, and if he happens to be engaged in an industry which is not essential to the war he finds himself stranded for lack of material and labor.

We are living today under an autocracy more rigid than any the world has ever experienced. The will of our President, and his advisers, is law, and yet we are not complaining, because the one and only business at hand is winning the war. So our railroads and public utilities are turned over to the government, and our great army of labor is employed on munitions or supplies for our boys in camp and field. This means a complete revolution, so far as business is concerned, and it is not surprising that many of us find it difficult to adapt ourselves to changed conditions.

It is estimated that we have one and a half million men on the other side, and that a ton of munitions and supplies is necessary for every man's equipment. That means one and a half million tons, to say nothing about the submarine toll at the bottom of the sea. These men, who are fighting for us, are entitled to the best we have to give, and so we say cheerfully, "take the wheat and the coal, and anything else that you need and we will furnish the supplies and the money to aid you in putting the Hun out of business for all time to come."

At the close of the Civil war, anthracite coal sold in Janesville at seventeen dollars per ton, gold was worth two-fifty, and money so scarce that the necessities of life were difficult to obtain. Today money is more abundant than at any time in the history of the country, but its purchasing power is greatly reduced because the government has been obliged to commandeer so many things for our army and allies and the supply remaining is necessarily short. In the matter of anthracite coal our merchant marine today is the great consumer and hundreds of thousands of tons, which usually come west, are going across the water at the present time. This is true of wheat and flour, of meat and many other staples, and scarcity at home is the natural result.

But what about sacrifice? We don't know what the word means, so far as our temporal needs are concerned. There is no poverty in the land and two jobs are waiting for every man and woman who is willing to work. The most of us are growing fat on three square meals a day. Some of us may be obliged to stretch a point to pay for a Liberty bond, but the stretching will do us good, for the bond means a bank account which many of us would never have had without it. The saving habit is a blessing, so thinly disguised that it is easily discovered. There will be more capitalists in the land after the war.

There are just two classes of people in this country today who are sacrificing for the war—the boy who places himself upon the altar, and who may or may not return, and his mother who bids him good-bye and Godspeed with unshed tears and a choke in her voice, which she tries to conceal. The father may share in her feelings to some extent, but the boy is his mother's boy and the love she has for him is like the love of God.

The things that we are doing without today are not necessary to existence. Our wants are always far in excess of our needs and an unsupplied want is frequently a blessing. Many good people who pray are often disappointed because the good Lord knows the difference between a want and a need and, like children, we clamor for many things which we want that would be harmful to us.

If the battlefields of France were located on American soil, we would know something about sacrifice, as a people. If we were refugees fleeing before the Hun army with homes destroyed and loved ones victims of the most dastardly outrages, we would realize what war means at close range. If every house was a house of mourning, as is the case in many countries of the old world, and if our land was overrun with maimed and wounded heroes, then would sacrifice be a sad reality. Here is a little story written by a Y. M. C. A. man from the other side, that should cause us to thank God that the seat of war is three thousand miles away.

"In a village close up to the front lines that was almost deserted, a group of soldiers were standing on a corner. A company of French children begged, as they always do, for a few sous. The soldiers scattered some among them to see them scramble for the coins. They noticed in the group two little girls caring for their baby brother. They were unusually quiet and not clamoring for money. They looked hungry and the soldiers gave them some of their biscuits and crackers which they had just purchased at a canteen. They noticed, too, that the children did not eat the food given them but they started off quickly and eagerly with it. They decided to follow and were led to a broken-down and barren billet. Following the children into the stone paved room they saw them give the food to an elderly woman lying on a bed of straw in a corner with but a worn shawl to cover her. She was the mother of the children, one of the refugees who had passed that way within the preceding days. Seeing the soldiers she was alarmed, but the children told her of their kindness. The friendly look on the men seemed to quiet her. She was ill and explained to them how she had come to this place and was too weak to go further and had no one to befriend her and her little ones.

"Assured by the men that they were not intruders but were kindly American soldiers, perhaps with children of their own at home, she staggered across the room and pulled aside a cloth in the corner and uncovered the body of a nine months old infant which had been dead three days. She had been too sick to bury it, nor could she have given it a decent funeral. Our boys needed no further appeal. They went out quietly and quickly, took up a collection among their mates, sent food to the family, brought help to care for the sick woman, bought a coffin, secured a padre, and made arrangement for a typical French burial for the child—just like our American boys.

"Every hungry, pinched and needy child in France is an appeal to the American soldier—and a child from Belgium—a country whose violation was the greatest call to arms, made an appeal for the quick assistance of these boys."

That's sacrifice, and there are thousands of incidents just as pathetic, which will never be written. Let us stop complaining, and invest all the energy, and everything else which we possess, if necessary, to winning the war and winning it quickly. These damnable outrages must stop, and the men responsible for them must be punished. This is your war and mine. God help us to be faithful and loyal to the sacred trust.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

When the vital blow falls it will never do to have the crown prince in command. Hindy and Ludey will have to be responsible in the eyes of the German people when the "Invincible" army is crushed. No scarcity in Kultur's goat crop.

What the crown prince really needs is not a vacation but a vocation.

If the C. P. wants to take a trip on his "vacation" and see something he never saw before, let him go and take a look at No Man's Land.

The "human fly" was scaling a high wall and an old man on the ground watched him breathlessly. An old man who had never seen the like of it before approached and asked one of the onlookers: "What be he a-doin', stranger?" "He's goin' up to the roof, of course," was the brisk reply. The old man watched a moment and then said, "Why don't the darned chump go up in the elevator?"

"THAT 'VACATION.'" All-Highest dug his first-born up. Out of the deep French sand. He led him from the tunnel, then He grasped him by the hand. And said, "Dear Fred, I'm proud of you."

Your work is simply grand. But now I think it's really best For you to take a nice long rest.

You're overworked, I long have guessed. I hope you'll understand. Here's one more medal for your breast. Go see our joyous land."

To allied aviators: Keep the Hun fires burning. German efficiency is blind and deaf but not dumb. It can still blow.

Prisoner walked away from Sing Sing quite nonchalantly the other day, and two days later he returned and gave himself up. It takes a lot of nerve to try and live out in the world these days.

How dear to my heart Are the scenes of my childhood. When fond recollection Presents them to view. That shave and shampoo that I got for a quarter And the fifteen-cent haircut My infancy knew.

It was Saturday night in Solomon's palace and Solomon stood at the door of the royal hall at 7 o'clock and waited.

Along toward six the next morning he still stood there and was heard to mutter: "I would like to lay me out on the guy who invented that slogan, 'Women and children first.'"

The bond issue is imperative.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Zena Keefe is to return to the screen after a season's absence, to star in the first of a series of productions under the banner of the Ardor photo-play, Inc. Her last appearance in the silent drama was in "One Hour," which was produced last season.

Miss Keefe's new vehicle is a patriotic photo-drama entitled "The Challenge," from a scenario by Gordon Field. The scenes of this production, which will be ready for the screen during the coming month, are laid in the Blue Ridge Mountains, and the plot deals with the manner in which the message of the great world conflict was brought home to the simple hills folk. As the daughter of a country storekeeper, Sally Weston, Miss Keefe is given a wide opportunity to exercise her dramatic talents.

HELPING UNCLE SAM

Frank A. Vanderlip, chairman of the National War Savings committee, has given Charles Ray credit for launching the idea of honoring among requests for photographs those which are accompanied by four thrift stamps, the stamps to be returned to the purchaser when the photograph is sent. Other screen stars have suggested, originally or following some one else's suit, variations of this idea, and the practice is said to be spreading throughout a number of studios with the result that the sale of thrift stamps has received material impetus.

ARLINE COMING BACK

Arline Pretty, who has been absent from the screen for more than a year on account of illness, will return shortly in the capacity of star in a series of eight feature pictures under the management of Lansing Mus- ters. Miss Pretty will leave for the coast at once to begin work on the first picture, details for which have been completed.

Harry Edwards, formerly the director, now merely the husband of Gladys Rockwell, stationed at Camp Lewis with a number of Uncle Sam's men has been made a corporal, according to a letter received recently by his wife.

William S. Hart has been asked by the government to cover three of the most important territories for the fourth Liberty loan. These include New York, Philadelphia and Boston. The actor will start his campaign early in October.

Theda Bara, having completed the picture now in process of production at the Hollywood studios, will go east in September, accompanied by her sister Lou and her director J. Gordon Edwards.

Louise Lovely, for several years a star at Universal City, has been engaged to play opposite William Farnum in his next picture, "The Man of Power."

Resume of Moving Picture Programs Of Last Week

The government has listed the movie picture business as one of the essential industries, at the present time, and its employees will be exempted in the operation of the draft. It is constantly being urged by the War Relocation Bureau in war work, and soon will have an important part to play in advertising the registration for the new draft on Sept. 7th. That many people can be reached in this manner, who never read the newspapers.

Weekly bulletins containing many interesting war pictures and news, as well as special features when desired by the government. A lively cartoon on war topics is listed at the Beverly weekly.

Evansville theatre had an English story, "Vivienne," which featured pretty little Vivian Martin as a springy coquette, making trouble between brother and sister. The setting of an old country home was beautiful, and extremely well done. It was shown the last of the week. On Saturday there was, "The Golden Fall," which was a play showing how the battle of money could cause trouble between lovers. It too had an English setting, and later the scene shifted to New York. Little Madge Evans adds a good deal of human interest to the story, with her intelligent acting.

The Sunday play was May Allison in "A Successful Adventure," which was a southern story with a lot of dandies in the cast. It was clever and amusing.

Douglas Fairbanks does many athletic stunts, and some really good acting in his role of a cub reporter in the play, "His Young Fellow." The theme of the play is that pluck, perseverance and grit will win out for the young fellow in the world. The love story of an elderly couple is woven into the tale and gives romantic interest.

One of the very clever things which Madge Kennedy does so well as seen at the Majestic on Monday, in "The Pale Pretender." She is pretending to be a prominent society woman, when only a poor stenographer, and becomes involved in funny complications when the man whose name she assumes as widow, returns home unharmed from the war. A poor journalist who pretends to be a famous author is also involved in the plot, and the whole thing is carried through with vim and artistic ability.

An African story with the setting of tropical forests was staged at a mid-week offering by this theatre, with "The Claw," and this name was given because Africa was designated as a witch waiting to get her claw upon her victim. The story took an uprising of the natives where an attack was made upon a body of volunteers. One of them was captured and kept unharmed by the natives to be made. A false tale of his death was carried back to his sweetheart by his rival in love, but he finally paid the price of his treachery by his death.

At the Apollo an elaborate production of Nazimova called, "Toys of Fate," was the main attraction of the week. This wonderful actress had full sway of her dramatic ability in this play, in which she represented a gypsy girl educated by a wealthy man and afterward married to him. Later she discovered that he was the murderer of her mother, and having lured her away from her husband and daughter. He takes poison by accident but suspicion is cast upon his young wife, and she is put on trial. The young lawyer who defends her at the trial, was her old lover, and later marries the much harassed heroine. The gypsy scenes are especially one of good, and the setting of a beautiful garden scene is most effective. The patriotic pictures showing war work and battle scenes were also very good. They were shown the latter part of the week.

Love in a Hurry

Hall was angry. "You seem to be pretty sure of it!" Jonas placidly shook his head in sorrow at this exhibition of temper. "Now, Hall, you want to take this in a Chris-

"No, You Haven't Asked Me!"

Man spirit, my boy. I can see it'll be all for the best. Remember that gold is but dross."

Hall whistled on him. "Shut up, will you? By love, if you weren't in my own house, I'd kick you downstairs!" And with that, he flung impetuously out of the room.

Jonas' sour glance followed him. "Peevish, isn't he? How he gets it!" he asked anxiously, in an undertone, of Flodie. "Anything happened?"

"Well, I should say!" said Flodie. "You ought to have seen the show. But we're not out of the woods, yet. Still, I think that if I have time and luck, I can put it through."

"You can? By whilkens, that's fine! Good for you! Well, we ought to know pretty soon now." He looked up at the clock. "Only, let's see—an hour and thirty—"

"He stopped, staring at the clock, then, with a puzzled face, drew his own big watch from his pocket, and compared it with the clock. "Say!" He turned eagerly to Flodie.

"Hush!" cried Flodie, and laid her finger on her lip.

Jonas' expression grew crafty. Then he grinned. "Oh, I see! Got a little scheme fixed up, eh?" He walked to the couch and sat down, beckoning her. "Say, just set down, won't you, and let me know how things stand."

Flodie demurely took a seat beside him.

"Then they ain't no danger of any of them three women gittin' him, is they?"

"Why," said Flodie, "not if we can manage to keep them away from him. It isn't so easy as it looks. Those women are getting desperate, now, and you've got to help me foot them."

"Me? How? What can I do?"

"Why, if one of them gets him, you've got to just jump in, and break it up in a hurry. Don't let her get a word in edgewise, if you can help it. Fall on the floor, smash a window—anything! It doesn't matter what they think."

"By Jiminy, I'll do it, you bet!" cried Jonas. "One thing I do know: How to handle women!"

"There's millions in it, Mr. Hassingbury!"

"And I'm the feller what's going to get 'em!" He seized Flodie's hand before she could protest, and shook it energetically. "Say, miss, you're a little wonder! Think of your doin' all that just on my account—you're a friend worth havin', d'you know it?"

"It was nice of me, wasn't it?" Flodie replied modestly, turning away to bite her lip.

Jonas hitched his chair closer. "Why, I been a-thinkin' of it over to-day, and I got a proposition I've decided to make to ye. If I g't this here money, and it looks how like I should, what d'ye say to we two hitchin' up together?"

Flodie jumped up suddenly. "Now, hold on, miss!" Jonas exclaimed, and stretched forth his long arm in exhortation. "You hear me out first, I've kind o' took a notion to ye, and I'm willin' to try it, if you be. I don't see where I could do better, and you'd g't a good man if you got me, miss, if I do say it!"

"Thank you kindly," said Flodie.

"But I don't really know what in the world I'd do with you if I got you." Jonas stared at her as if she were raving. "You don't know what you're talkin' about! Don't you realize if you marry me you'll get four million dollars? Lord, any other gal would just jump at the chance to have the spendin' o' that money."

"Let 'em jump!" said Flodie. "That's my advice, Mr. Hassingbury; you take a good jumper. And I want to give you a tip—"

She went up to him and took him confidentially by the lapel of his coat. "There will be three women here tonight, and all of 'em can jump like grasshoppers. Once they find out you have money, and they'll jump at the chance, you see! They'll jump all over you!"

Before the astonished Jonas could reply, Alfred opened the door to a lady gorgeously arrayed in blue. Flodie gave one look at her, then whispered: "There's the first one of 'em now! Miss Gale."

Then she stepped forward, sniffing fragrant scornfully, and welcomed Rosamund.

An elaborate, palatial picture of feminine flippancy was Rosamund Gale. She came in as if making a stage entrance. Something was to happen tonight, Rosamund was on the war-path.

She barely acknowledged Flodie's greeting, or Jonas' presence. Then, with a hasty anxious glance about; then, seeing no women, seemed to breathe freer. "Where's Hall?" she asked almost immediately.

"Oh, somewhere about. In with the musicians probably." Flodie turned to Jonas. "Mr. Hassingbury, Miss Gale!"

Jonas bent over her. "Why, now, they's a lot o' Gales down to Branford, where I live. I wonder if you—"

"Tell Hall to hurry please!" cried Rosamund to Flodie. Flodie started off, smiling, but Rosamund caught at her arm and held her. "Wait a minute, though! Miss Fisher, listen! Has anything—anything important happened?"

"What d'you mean?"

"Oh, I mean—well, nothing exciting, has it?"

Flodie reflected. "Why, I'm afraid Alfred has spilled some salad on his new dress suit, Miss Gale, if that's what you mean?"

Rosamund did not condescend to answer. She left haughtily and passed hurriedly into the dressing room and divested herself of her wraps. Jonas had but time to remark to Flodie, "So she's one of 'em, is she? Pretty gal, by Jiminy!" when she was out again, and without noticing them, had gone to the door of the reception room, and looked in, scowling.

Here, the rugs were all up and the floor waxed for dancing. Three musicians were scraping and tuning their instruments. Hall Bonstelle was in a corner, arranging a vase of flowers. Rosamund darted in and swam up to him. No scowl now; she was a different creature, smiling, radiant, angelic, sailing on an air of gladness. She seized Hall's hand excitedly.

"Oh, Hall," she exclaimed dramatically, "ma's perfectly delighted! It's all right, and you needn't worry a moment longer! Aren't you glad?" She hung on him fondly as if she expected him to embrace her.

Hall had turned white. Rosamund's beauty had instantly disarmed him. He could no more have said the brutal things he had contemplated than he could have struck a child. Weakly, he prostrated, fumbling her hand. "Really?" he managed to say. "Jove! That's fine!"

"Well, why don't you kiss me, Hall?" Rosamund's eyes were on the door, watching anxiously for interruptions. Flodie gazed in.

Hall looked over his shoulder, embarrassed. "Oh, these musicians—I don't want them to—say, wait till we can be alone!"

She stared at him in annoyed surprise, then gave another irritated glance at the door. The sound of women's voices goaded her on. "Non-sense! Why, I intend to announce our engagement immediately!"

Terror-stricken, Hall exclaimed, "Oh, no, that won't do at all, Rosamund, really. We'll have to wait a little while—not tonight, anyway!"

"Why, that's half the fun of being engaged—talking about it!" Then, after another quick look toward the office, she gazed up at him and pressed his hand. "We are engaged, aren't we, Hall?"

"Oh, yes—certainly! Only—"

Rosamund had an instant of triumph and relief. It was all right, then. She tossed her head as if in secret revolt; she would have her own way, see if she didn't! "Well," she said coldly, "I'll wait a while, if you insist. Only, I should think you might look happier about it. You act so funny!"

He was saved from having to reply by Jonas Hassingbury, who, glimpsing the encounter, and impelled by Flodie, had plunged boldly forward to the rescue.

"Say," he began pointblank to Rosamund, "be you any relation to Abijah Gale? I believe his mother was a Nettleton."

Rosamund glared, and Hall, seizing the happy chance, had already begun to edge off, with an unbidden something about duties and guests. People had, in truth, begun to arrive and the place was filling rapidly. The musicians had begun to play; Flodie looked in, with a distressed face, and beckoned. Still Rosamund held him by the sleeve.

Jonas fired again. "Ain't never been down Branford way, have ye? Say, you ought to run down to our village some time, miss, and g't a mess o' clams. We got some first-class lobsters down home. Know it?"

Rosamund turned the full glory of her gaze upon him. "Oh, yes," she said sweetly, "I can easily believe that!"

But alas for her irony! This indulgence had cost her her prey. Hall was already across the room, and Jonas clung like a leech. She could not, with all her insolence, detach him.

CHAPTER XII.

Guests were coming in bunches, now, and kept Hall so busy for half an hour that he had no time to plan how he should escape from the other two women with whom he must inevitably have matrimonial converse.

So far, he was not particularly anxious. Rosamund he thought he could dispose of somehow, putting her off till Flodie should change her mind; and from Carolyn Dallys and Mrs. Royalty he feared little. He would trust, at any rate, to the inspiration of the moment. With four millions—and Flodie—he didn't much care what they thought of him. It was a caddish trick, perhaps, but—four millions! The end would have to justify the means.

So, handsome and elegant and popular, witty and well-bred, he laughed and gossiped with his guests, started the dancing, introduced one to another, showed his color prints, and between times, watched the mousy girl in white who had so suddenly assumed an extraordinary importance in his life.

Flodie, merely bowed to and patronized by most of the guests, had discovered an unexpected friend in Mr. Doremus. He, finding her his only acquaintance, had stuck to her like a burr. Flodie liked him. At a one-step he could not cut much of a figure, but seated in the office with Flodie, where she could keep an eye on Alfred and the caterer, it was not long before she felt impelled to make him her ally.

With all his elephantine wit and his manners of the old school, Mr. Doremus treated her in a jocular, fatherly, indulgent way that inspired her trust. And, that evening, Flodie had first need of a coadjutor. She began to give him her confidence, bit by bit, watching his face more than listening to his replies, and decided that she could trust him; he had sympathy and tact. When, at last, after many interruptions, her story was told, Mr. Doremus took off his misty glasses and wiped them.

"Miss Fisher," he said soberly, "if I can help in this crisis, let me implore you to tell me how."

Flodie got up slowly, and looked into his kind blue eyes. "Would you mind coming into the studio for a few minutes?" she asked. "I'm so afraid we may be interrupted or overheard. I want to tell you something."

Mr. Doremus offered her his arm, and escorted her into the studio.

By eleven o'clock both Carolyn Dallys and Mrs. Royalty had come. They had, in fact, arrived together, having shared Mrs. Royalty's limousine. This preconcerted action was caused less by friendship than a mutual suspicion. The two ladies dared not trust each other out of sight, and each for fear the other might gain an advantage, sacrificed her own desire to be beforehand with her plans.

The party was now in full swing. Some twenty were in the reception room, dancing or watching the dancers. The evening grew in life and merriment. Mr. Doremus, back from his interview with Flodie, was infected by the revels. He blossomed suddenly and unexpectedly into hilarity, and encouraged and stimulated by the gayer of the young actresses, became, in spite of himself, the center of the party. The company did not let him off till Alfred Smallish, blushing furiously, appeared in the doorway.

"Supper is ready—I mean—supper is served!" he announced, and coughed into his hand.

The three soubrettes who had been pelting Mr. Doremus with pinks, now surrounded him, bound him with ever-green garlands and carried him off enslaved, through the office, where Flodie was presiding over tables of salad and sandwiches, into the reception room, where they enthroned him on an old Spanish chair, and waited on him like hours.

The gentlemen rushed back and forth with plates and napkins; everybody began to talk and laugh. Beer bottles popped.

Dinner Stories

Deacon Jones had been a member of the village church for twenty years, and he had, at that time, he had never converted anyone. At length, a revival was conducted one winter and the deacon decided to get busy.

He was driving home one night from meeting when he was stopped by a man who asked him for a ride.

The deacon had taken his double-barreled shotgun to town to be repaired. The gun reposed by his side.

Once inside the buggy the deacon decided that there was a chance to do a little personal work.

Placing his hand on the shotgun he turned toward the man and said: "Are you prepared to die?"

"Not by a long shot," the man replied as he jumped from the buggy and made for the woods at top speed.

The lady had heard a stranger in a railway carriage say that if any man could see himself intoxicated, he would never be intoxicated again, and having a husband addicted to alcoholism, and also plenty of money, she thought of experimenting.

The cinematograph operator whom she engaged was not kept waiting long for an opportunity of filming the errant husband, and the presence of a relatively new subject was privileged to behold himself on the screen.

He was very quiet throughout, and gravely left the room, which the others thought a good sign. Finding he had also left the house, his brother set out to find him, running him to earth eventually in the club, busy—as an attendant waited—with his fifteenth whisky and soda.

"Look here," said the brother, "I didn't think I'd find you back at this game."

"Didn't you?" innocently asked the subject. "Well, the fact of the matter is, I'm not satisfied with that film."

Vocational School Opens Tuesday, Sept. 3

For the school year of 1918 and 1919, eight hours per week school attendance is required of all young people, working under permits. Eight hours per week at the Vocational school is also required of boys and girls between fourteen and seventeen years of age not working under permit and not attending a six hour a day school.

There will be school Saturday afternoon for both boys and girls between fourteen and sixteen years of age, who work under permit and cannot work Saturday afternoon.

For academic work the young people are divided into two general classes: those in the eighth grade and above and those in the eighth grade and below.

As over one-half of the boys and girls of the city who are working under permit were either in or had just finished the eighth grade, that grade is made the basis of classification. If a boy or girl has finished the eighth or was strong in the eighth grade he will go into the class called eighth grade and above, otherwise he will go into the class eighth grade and lower.

As heretofore every effort will be made to accommodate employers, but it is hoped that so far as possible employees will be sent on the day of their classification, and of their choice of work.

The forenoon sessions will be from 7:30 to 11:30, the afternoon sessions from 1:15 to 5:15.

The work given in the program as commercial work includes typewriting, bookkeeping, commercial arithmetic and business English. Short hand is optional.

Monday A. M. Sewing—Eighth grade and above. Commercial work. Monday P. M. Machine shop—Eighth grade and above.

Tuesday A. M. Bench woodworking, automobile work. Eighth and above. Tuesday P. M. Cooking—Eighth and lower.

Wednesday A. M. Mechanics including gas engines, pipe fitting, wiring etc.—Eighth grade and above. Wednesday P. M. Sewing—Eighth grade and lower. Commercial work.

Thursday A. M. Machine shop—Eighth grade and above. Thursday P. M. Sewing—Eighth grade and above. Commercial work.

Friday A. M. Sewing—Eighth grade and lower. Friday P. M. Machine shop—Eighth grade and above. Saturday P. M. Sewing for eighth grade and above. Sewing for eighth grade and lower. Commercial Work.

The Saturday afternoon class for boys will be arranged to suit those in attendance.

The vocational school and high school have combined their machine shops. The vocational school has bought additional equipment, are to buy still more and it is believed the machine shop of the school will be a credit to our city.

The coming year is going to be a trying one for employers and employees and it is hoped that all will be as patient and forbearing and co-operate as heartily as heretofore.

C. F. HILL, Director of Vocational Schools.

Car Owners--Remember if you expect good everyday service from your car, you must have it looked over and entrust the care of it to expert, efficient mechanics only.

We are giving scores of Janesville and vicinity motorists the kind of service that keeps their automobiles in first class running order, and at the minimum of expense. The fact that we don't have any of the usual "slump season" in our business, but are always busy and working over time, is conclusive evidence that our efforts to serve well are appreciated by all our customers.

We Employ Only High-Priced, Experienced, Efficient Mechanics in Our Place of Business

Thus assuring you motorists of skilled expert work at all times. Think what this means to you: A great saving of time and money besides the satisfaction of positively knowing that your car is repaired and fixed up the way it should be.

We have only the best. Come where you get the best and not pay any more for it than you would elsewhere.

We are agents for the famous Eveready Storage Battery, the only non-sulphating starting battery. When you have an eveready, long service is guaranteed. Let us test out your battery for you free of charge.

You should equip your car with Dann insert, "The Lubricated Spring Leaf Bearing." It makes a wonderful difference in the riding qualities of your car. Let us tell and show you Dann Insert.

As we handle only the best, we of course, sell and install the famous Rayfield Carburetor. We don't have to tell you what the Rayfield can do and has done; it has made its own story. Remember, we are agents for the Rayfield.

We have Ambu, the little machine that locates all electrical troubles on your starter and lighting system. It saves you time and money and assures you of the quickest action.

We have the famous little Defectometer, the little instrument to test out your magneto. It is one of the finest and neatest testing instruments on the market. It locates any magneto trouble at once.

A complete line of starter brushes and points, distributor blocks and caps and any other magneto parts that any car owner may be in need of.

We can honestly say and show you that we have one of the finest and most up-to-date Garages and Repair Shops in the southern part of the state. A complete line of all necessities and accessories always on hand at this place. Come where you get the best and where you pay no more than for the rest.

THIS REPAIR SHOP AND SERVICE STATION WILL BE CLOSED ALL DAY SUNDAYS IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE NEW RULING FROM WASHINGTON.

TYRUS COBB AGAIN WINS BATTING HONORS

(By Associated Press.)
Chicago, Aug. 31.—Capt. Tyrus Raymond Cobb, who this week stepped from the spotlight of baseball into the chemical division of the army, took with him the 1918 batting honors of the American league.
As the Detroit star stood bowing before the falling curtain of the game, the crowd roared with applause. Cobb's average, according to figures released today, is .377. Burris of Philadelphia is second with .346, and George Sisler, the St. Louis first baseman, third with .337.
Cobb, however, did not excel in base stealing, for Sisler, with a total of forty, leads by six over the Georgian. Chapman of Boston is second, with thirty-six, and Fletcher of Cleveland is third, with thirty-four.
Cobb, who was not in the game, next with thirty.
"Babe" Ruth, the Boston star, and Walker of Philadelphia remain tied for honors in home runs, with seven each. Cobb, the runner-up, leads the league in club fielding with an average of .971, but is sixth in batting with .246.
Cleveland's runner-up in the race, tops the league in batting with .290.

Sport Snap Shots

MORRIS MILLER

Just about the time we become a little interested in the coming world series something bobs up like the latest brainstorm of Owner Frazee of the Boston Red Sox to dampen our baseball ardor.

A few days ago President Ban Johnson of the American league announced, after consultation with the other members of the national council, that the world series would start September 4, and that the first three games would be played at Chicago.

The main reason for starting three games in one city before jumping to the other city is to relieve the railroads of the added burden of carrying the teams and hundreds of fans from one city to the other. A patriotic move, truly.

But Frazee went up in the air. "I will refuse to play if this plan is carried out," was the ultimatum of Frazee. We say it with sorrow that his statement got into print. We're sure that is what he wanted—a little more publicity—and the games in his own park.

Now Mr. Frazee evidently has seen that he can't run the series. Anyhow, he has announced that he has changed his mind and will allow his team to play.

Isn't that nice of him.

The stage was set for the Pirates to make a triple play in one inning of a recent game in Pittsburgh and early the speedy footwork of Arthur Fletcher prevented Bozok's man from perfecting a three ply killing. Doyle, center and Fletcher, reached first when Cuthaw, in his eagerness to start a double play, fumbled the Giant's captain's grounder. Zimmerman then lashed the ball on a line in the direction of left field, but Boone, leaping into the air, speared the drive with his gloved hand. Doyle and Fletcher had darted from their respective bases and "Larry" was easily doubled up on Boone's quick peg to Cuthaw. The Pirate second sacker shot the ball to Melwitz to complete a triple play, but Fletcher scrambled back into the bag a fraction of a second in advance of the arrival of the pellet.

Billy Kelly's wonderful performance in winning the Grab Bag Handicap recently set the old running race fans talking of weight carrying feats of other days. Billy Kelly carried 135 pounds a weight that has never been surpassed by any of the great two-year-olds in winning stakes. Only three champions juveniles have carried that weight and won over the best horses of their respective years. They were the great Hamburg, Endurance by Night and Novelty. The latter was the last youngster to win under such a handicap, according to Sam Hildreth, who trained him.

Dick Robertson of the Robins was the leading hurler in the Southern league this season. According to the official scores just out he won ten and lost one.

Max Carey continues to steal bases despite all efforts to grab him, and he will close the season with a big lead over all other major league players. After getting away to such a flying start the Birmingham club may lose the International league pennant to all. The Toronto club is making a great fight for the honors.

Clark Griffith can call his team the champion extra inning club of the two major leagues anyway.

Fritz Coumbe, the pitcher from whom the least was expected, was sure effective against the Red Sox in the recent Cleveland-Boston series than was any of the "Big Three" of the Cleveland pitching staff—Morton, Dovesleskie and Bagley.

CLINTON NEWS

Clinton, Aug. 30.—Miss Mae Bunker is visiting relatives here.
The A. B. C. club were royally entertained by the Messadames P. M. Herron and Wallace Chessman at the Herron cottage at Leaven Lake Thursday. Those who attended were Messadames Nettie Scott, E. L. Hatch, F. W. McKinney, W. A. May Jr., F. R. Hamilton, W. H. Hughes, F. W. Reader, Ray Stewart and Mrs. Pratt of Freeport. Their husbands arrived for tea, and all returned in the evening feeling they had spent most delightful day.

Rev. H. T. Volk and Leonard Hamilton motored to Chicago Friday. The Messadames Agnes and Lillian Newhouse and brother Orrin left Wednesday evening for Minnesota to attend the wedding of a cousin.

Miss Edna Faver Bright and daughter Mary of Eureka, Kan., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Eldridge. Mrs. Henry Conley leaves Saturday evening for Minneapolis to visit her son Roy and family.
The Messadames Jensen and Myrtle Adams expect to enter the Beloit hospital to train for Red Cross work. Mrs. Chant and daughter Irene spent Tuesday in Milwaukee where Miss Irene expects to enter teacher's normal.

AND HE DID

I WISH I COULD THINK OF SOME SURE WAY OF GETTING RID OF SPIES AND TRAITORS.

AND HE DID—THE ONLY WAY

THE STAGE WAS SET FOR THE PIRATES TO MAKE A TRIPLE PLAY IN ONE INNING OF A RECENT GAME IN PITTSBURGH AND EARLY THE SPEEDY FOOTWORK OF ARTHUR FLETCHER PREVENTED BOZOK'S MAN FROM PERFECTING A THREE PLY KILLING. DOYLE, CENTER AND FLETCHER, REACHED FIRST WHEN CUTHAW, IN HIS EAGERNESS TO START A DOUBLE PLAY, FUMBLER THE GIANT'S CAPTAIN'S GROUNDER. ZIMMERMAN THEN LASHED THE BALL ON A LINE IN THE DIRECTION OF LEFT FIELD, BUT BOONE, LEAPING INTO THE AIR, SPEARED THE DRIVE WITH HIS GLOVED HAND. DOYLE AND FLETCHER HAD DARTED FROM THEIR RESPECTIVE BASES AND "LARRY" WAS EASILY DOUBLED UP ON BOONE'S QUICK PEG TO CUTHAW. THE PIRATE SECOND SACKER SHOT THE BALL TO MELWITZ TO COMPLETE A TRIPLE PLAY, BUT FLETCHER SCRAMBLER BACK INTO THE BAG A FRACTION OF A SECOND IN ADVANCE OF THE ARRIVAL OF THE PELLET.

Billy Kelly's wonderful performance in winning the Grab Bag Handicap recently set the old running race fans talking of weight carrying feats of other days. Billy Kelly carried 135 pounds a weight that has never been surpassed by any of the great two-year-olds in winning stakes. Only three champions juveniles have carried that weight and won over the best horses of their respective years. They were the great Hamburg, Endurance by Night and Novelty. The latter was the last youngster to win under such a handicap, according to Sam Hildreth, who trained him.

Dick Robertson of the Robins was the leading hurler in the Southern league this season. According to the official scores just out he won ten and lost one.

Max Carey continues to steal bases despite all efforts to grab him, and he will close the season with a big lead over all other major league players. After getting away to such a flying start the Birmingham club may lose the International league pennant to all. The Toronto club is making a great fight for the honors.

Clark Griffith can call his team the champion extra inning club of the two major leagues anyway.

Fritz Coumbe, the pitcher from whom the least was expected, was sure effective against the Red Sox in the recent Cleveland-Boston series than was any of the "Big Three" of the Cleveland pitching staff—Morton, Dovesleskie and Bagley.

The trade of Jacobs for Mayer proved a good one for both the Phils and the Pirates as each boxman has been going very well since the transaction.

SIDE LIGHTS on the CIRCUS BUSINESS

By D. W. WATT

Former Manager Burr Robbins and Later Treasurer of Adam Forepaugh Circus.

All of the tented shows of today are having their own which benefit from one town to another and erect their tents and give exhibitions and this holds good from the small show up to the great Ringling and Barnum shows; and if the war continues, it would not be strange if many of the old timers, who have been considered back numbers the last few years, would find their services would be valuable next season. And it is not, as a rule, its working force which suffers the worse, yet in every department about the big circuses the manpower has been sadly depleted.

Word comes from Josie De Mott Robinson telling of her plans for the future—New York. Josie De Mott Robinson, who has been in the business for many years, and her mother Mrs. James De Mott and Rosa Oakley have taken apartments at Atlantic City for the last half of the summer. Mrs. Robinson took up a very difficult course at Columbia University for "over seas" work in rebuilding "our boys" who have suffered the loss of eyes, ears, arms or legs. She is waiting the call to sail over and practice her war profession. To a few old timers in Janesville this will be interesting news as the James De Mott family were the early show visitors in the middle 70's and the last time the Barnum and Bailey show visited Janesville under the management of James A. Bailey, Josie De Mott Robinson was the principal writer, at that time and for many years later the De Mott family were famous in the business, and later married Charles Robinson, youngest son of the late John Robinson, a famous circus manager of Cincinnati.

As more or less has been said about tented shows and the money they receive from the people, the following article, giving a detailed account of the part show folk are doing in the war, will certainly be interesting, the most of which was published in the Bill-board of last week.

"To the Officers and members of local units of the National Council of Defense. Greeting: If you are banded together to help win the war and truly inspired by great patriotism, and we inspire and believe that you are, you will not refuse to investigate carefully and duly weigh and consider the following incontrovertible claims, viz.: The very first to volunteer their services at the thousands and thousands of benefit performances and since the war were held to raise funds for the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., Soldiers' Smokes Funds, Belgian, French, Serbian, Greek, Russian, Armenian Relief Funds, etc. No authentic figures are obtainable, but the total amount of money raised by this means was estimated at $400,000,000 and probably half as much again and the artists and performers of America are entitled to the major part of the credit for it.
